(I would go to Germany on receiving invitations from 3 important people (Hexagram V of P) I am writing I.W.E. to this effect. There is joy in my heart, as I shall need a new outfit to be presentable. I think L.S.E.S. will look you up to the limit. He writes "I have seen a publisher" which means what? He says he wants to see you. I told him you'd be back by 11. I got his book here by 11, that gives me great confidence that I have understood the man.

Dear and revered Great Brother and beloved Master
There is joy in my heart. I saw no way to further the Great Work in Germany by preparing people for your coming, and to-day I was told by one of the members of the I.T.V. who came from their Summer-school and stayed with us for a day, that they have again been told to prepare themselves for the coming of the World-teacher. Ever and again H.R. impressed it on their mind that it is their "Will" that helps them to get on, etc. I am perfectly sure that he reads your books and cannot help seeing that he has been a threefold ass, -- though I am just as sure that he would be far from owning it.

But as there have been about 120 people at their meeting I see my way now, and shall try once more and address the different societies, telling them of your coming and that there is an opportunity for everyone given to form his or her own judgment by meeting you. They are still at Berka, where the Summer-school is being held, but leave at the end of next week. Then my time has come. I am sure, that curiosity may be their chief stimulus, but that does not matter; the chief thing is that this bad spell of their being kept apart will be broken.

One of H.R.'s so-called great friends told me months ago when I talked to her and explained things, that H.R. had said something like that the other day and that she felt sure he would read the books and bring the ideas given as if they were his own. "So much the better"! I said, "he could not do anything more useful than that, for himself as well as for the others."

So, full of joy, I send my warmest love, with Gebhardi's expression of deepest reverence and an ever

I answered most of it yesterday.

Oh no account jeopardize 4. III.

I had no idea that £30 would embarrass you, or I wouldn't have taken it. I thought it was part of the £400, as against the July 30 remittance from Geneva. (By the way, be rightfully stupid about all such matters: you'll have to make every allowance.)

Curious about the boils - as K & I were both attacked in Paris. N.B. Her lack of mental resources makes it infernally dull for her in any really decent place. She needs flowers, & cocktails, & new clothes, & theatres to be her best self. Nature staves her. So I went to give her a "good time" (help!) at the critical moment.

Dear Master Therion:

I am in receipt of both of your recent letters, and which I shall not at this time make comment upon the various points you so kindly extended to me, I wish to thank you most sincerely for the invitation you give to come to Paris. Of course I had not contemplated receiving a salary for any secretarial work I might do, therefore your offer to supply board and lodging is overwhelming. Modest, you say! How else?

The thing is I have not a cent - so of course that is the only thing preventing me from sailing immediately. However, I am going to pull every string I can, and I shall write you once more towards the end of the week and see if the news that I will be able to send will be more satisfactory.

I shall close, but with the promise that I shall write again within at least ten days.
