Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

I hope you got the second lecture safely.

I saw Bracewell last night. I think that he can be persuaded to fix things up about a third or perhaps half of the way. For the rest, see my last letter.

About your seeing Bracewell: there was no question at any time of your entering into a business arrangement with him. All you ^{we} are asked to do is to express an independent opinion as to what would be fair terms and a working arrangement.

See you on Wednesday at the Langham at 7 o'clock.

I wrote Mr. J. C. Jones last week with reference to a debt Mr. Crowley allowed to accumulate on false promises while living here.

I have notes or letters confirming same from him. His age amounted to over £43. He was recommended to me & I was given to understand he was of good family, a good bet, an honourable gentleman, otherwise I would not have allowed him to run up an account with me, for I can ill afford it.

My opinion of him, is, that after living here a couple of weeks, he deliberately decided to live upon my honest hard earnings. I am a woman of my 67th year, kept at 6-40th to earn my living & get

The last was the best because

Dear Mr. Yorke

I think it my duty to let you know, the position as regards A. Craxley & myself. I have personally stopped all treatment to him, as he is in debt to me of a sum exceeding £10. he being an undischarged Bankrupt, & did not disclose this fact to me. In fact he imposed on me & is still doing so with other people as I have just discovered this morning. By making claim as a Doctor. you first gave me the warning. By telling me he was no Doctor. However he has acted in such a dirty manner. & owing me £13-15-0 for treatment which I gave him at practically cost to myself. Of course I have now discovered a great deal against him, which I did not know. He also once gave you a very foul name to me when I mentioned you. However the whole affair is now in the hands of
